SOUTH AFRICAN CITRUS TRADE WITH BRICS

South Africa has healthy citrus exports into both China and Russia, while India is starting to show promise. Russia has been an important destination for South African citrus for many years. Since South African citrus gained access to China in 2004, exports have increased dramatically. Unfortunately exports to India remain way below potential levels, as access conditions remain difficult and import duties remain high.

South Africa’s total citrus exports to China, Russia and India have grown from 25 million (15 kg) cartons in 2018 to over 30 million cartons in 2022. This represents 19% of all citrus exported in 2022. The citrus basket exported to these countries is mostly oranges, with grapefruit, lemons and mandarins being imported in greater quantities.
